Aperitivo Bar

An aperitivo is a pre-meal drink and it is a cultural ritual. Deriving from the Latin aperire, meaning "to open", it is intended to sharpen the appetite before the meal but also to open up, come together. A ritual usually taking place after 18:00, with sunset-hued cocktails served as appetizers and with the great purpose of socializing with friends. Accordingly, for centuries Italians have said "Saluti" – cheers – over drinks and appetizers as a pleasant distraction after work and before dinner.
